No 1980 feed grain set-aside or diversion - Secretary of Agriculture Bergland has announced there will be no set-aside or diversion for 1980 feed grain crops.

Bergland said the program decisions were based on projected supply and demand factors for 1979 and 1980. He said a tighter supply situation is projected in the future. The latest actions will help meet domestic and export requirements and reduce the risk of rapid food price inflation.

Under actions announced recently, all producers of barley, corn and sorghum will be eligible for target price protection, loans and for participation in the farmer-owned reserve in 1980. Oat producers will be eligible for loans and the reserve program in 1980.

Bergland said producers will be assured at least the same 1980 feed grain and soybean loan rates as in 1979. This means loan levels of at least $2.00 for corn, $1.90 for sorghum, $1.63 for barley and $1.03 for oats, $1.70 for rye and $4.50 for soybeans.

Preliminary feed grain target price ranges will be announced by March 15. Current estimates based on the formula in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 indicate these prices would be $2.08 per bushel for corn, $2.46 for sorghum and $2.35 for barley.

In order to qualify for full target price protection, farmers cannot plant more corn, sorghum or barley in 1980 than was considered planted and set aside from these crops this year. Farmers who exceed this acreage will be subject to an allocation factor that can reduce any target price payment by up to 20 percent.

National program acreages (NPA) for 82.1 million acres for corn, 13.9 million for sorghum and 7.9 million for barley were also announced recently. The NPA is the number of acres for each crop needed to be planted to meet projected domestic and export requirements as well as provide for an adequate carryover.

Fire-Cured Tobacco - The advance loan rates have been announced and were based on the average level of support of 90.4 cents per pound, about 6.9 percent higher than the 1978 level.

The rates vary as to tobacco quality and range from $.48 to $1.38 per pound. There will be no support available for tobacco designated N2.

It has come to my attention that the fire-cured markets are due to open on November 27. As far as booking tobacco in advance, I don't have information at this time but hope to have in time for next weeks article.

Flue-Cured Tobacco - All flue producers are asked to return their marketing cards after they have finished marketing.

The area markets are due to close shortly. If your warehouse ceases to operate, you must visit the ASCS office and redesignate another warehouse that is still open. There is no waiting time necessary.

Then And Now

By Frances H. Paulette

NOTE: I want to thank Grover P. Beasley Jr. for lending me copies of several newspapers; Mid-Week Pictorials, an illustrated weekly published by the New York Times, all dated November and December 1918 and a copy of the picture section of the New York Times, dated Sunday, November 25, 1918.

* * * *

1918 And Something To Celebrate!!

When, on November 7, 1918, it was prematurely stated that an armistice had been signed by the representatives of the Allies and Germany there was an outburst of enthusiasm all over the United States that had no precedent in its history. Nowhere was this more marked than in New York City. Business was practically at a standstill and the city gave itself over to unrestrained hilarity.

When later it was learned that the news was premature it was freely prophesied that when the armistice should actually be signed there would be no such demonstration as that of November 7th. But, such prophets had underestimated the capacity of the American people for when the authentic announcement was made a second demonstration took place quite as uproarious as the first.

A visitor standing the corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-Second Street in New York would have seen great throngs crowding the thoroughfares as they cheered and sang. Countless bits of paper streamed from the windows of skyscrapers giving the appearance of a mid-winter snowstorm.

Let's pretend for a little while that we had been living in New York 'back Then'.....

Everywhere a body went there was an air of celebration.. a parade, a party, or just a private gathering. True, there was cause for celebration; the war was over and the men were coming home!

The men coming home! Almost too good to be true; to the ladies of 1918 that could mean only one thing.....looking their very best.

Just how did a lady, living way back in 1918 go about getting herself all 'prettied up' and back in shape? (If, of course, she had happened to let herself get a bit out of shape!) There weren't a lot of things to help her out back then.....or am I wrong?

According to the advertisements appearing in the picture section of the New York Times, Nov. 24, 1918, the lady of 1918 had plenty of help with looking her best. Let's take a look.

First of all, with a lot of the young men away at war, it is entirely possible that a lady or two may have 'let herself go' a bit. There was help!

If, after taking a long hard look at herself in the mirror, the lady of 1918 decided she was, well, "a bit too well-endowed", she could, according to one ad, "Reduce Your Flesh"! All she had to do was wear one of Dr. Walter's Reducing Rubber Garments. Guaranteed to get you back in shape for the modest sum of only $6.50.

It may have been the lady's complexion that had been the object of neglect, but there was a remedy for that too. Woodbury's Facial Soap was the answer. Buy a cake of the wonder-working soap and get a free book entitled, "Conspicious Nose Pores and How To Reduce Them." If that failed she always had Pond's Vanishing Cream.

Next, the lady of 1918 wanted to make sure her hair was well groomed and looking good. All kinds of shampoos and treatments were available. At Tobert's on Fifth Avenue a lady could get the finest in permanents at $1.50 a curl.

Occasionally a lady would have the opportunity for a night out on the town and no time for the beauty shop. There was only one answer.....'Clement's Transformations", the light airy, and absolutely undetectable wig. (Forgive me! I should have said 'hair-niece', no self-respecting lady would admit to wearing a 'wig') Wear one of these transformation and nobody, but nobody, would be the wiser!

To launder the Kayser Italian Silk underwear worn by the discriminating lady of that day, Lux Flakes were available.

When the day of her big date arrived, the lady would go into the parlour just to be sure everything was 'just so' Surveying the room, she was glad she had bought the Barto Day-Bed-Couch. A beautiful couch by day and with the horsehair mattress and box springs it converted into a comfortable bed when needed. It was true, she had gone a bit overboard paying all of $44.00 for it but after all, the wood was genuine Mahogany.

She was proud of owning the "Highest Class Talking Machine In The World".....a Sonora, clear as a bell! Nearby she had placed a box of Pure Maple Sugar Hearts for nibbling, while they listened to music.

Glancing at the Seth Thomas clock she had purchased for $12.00 she remembered she had told no one what she had paid for the timepiece, but after all it was genuine inlad mahogany.

Going to her closet, she decided the Crepe de Chine blouse and broadcloth skirt would be just 'right' for the evening. She'd wear her highlow, pointed toe boots even if they did pinch a bit.

It was a proud moment when this lady of 1918 took her new hose out of the closet. Made of silk velour du nord and silk lined it was her pride and joy. She didn't dare tell anyone that she had paid all of $75.00 for it; after all, most of her friends had paid around $39.00 for their new winter coats.

"I'll wear my gold Secret Locket War Ring," she thought as she 'hurried through last minute preparations. After all, she had worn it with 'His' picture all during the war.

One last thing, and she would be ready. Going to the coat closet, she carefully removed her "Fox Set"....the animal scarf and muff combination. She was really glad she had decided to indulge herself and spend the $49.50 for the "Fox Set" rather than choose the "Skunk Set"for only $29.50. The "Fox Set" really suited her manner of dressing and besides.....she was worth it!!

Yes, the war was over, the boys were home and she was glad. Things were going to be better.

As the lady of 1918 took a seat in her parlour rocker, waiting for her beau, she let her mind wander.....

"Just to the left of the window, that would be the exact spot for it," she said to herself as she rocked to and fro.

Sitting in her parlour, all 'decked out' in her finery for war, well, "a bit dressed up" for "better days" and the five-foot grand piano she had seen advertised in the New York Times for $850.00.

"That's a lot of money," she thought, "but who knows, I may 'marry well'!!

And she did.
